The Appellate Division Unanimously Upholds the Employer Whom the Painters' Union Tried to Ruin for Not Recognizing Their Walking Delegate.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court handed down a decision yesterday which, in effect, says that an employer's failure to show proper respect for a walk-ing delegate doesn't justify a union in ruining his business.

The case was that of John Beatty, a master painter at 245 West Forty-sixth street this city, against David Callanan and Joseph E. Healey, the president and walking delegate of the Amalgamated Painters and ecorators.

By a unanimous decision, the five Justices of the Appellate Division not only reversed the judgment of Justice O'Gorman in the Supreme Court, refusing Beatty a permanent injunction, but they also greatly limit the application of the decision in the National Protective Association vs. Cum-ming, which labor organizations have relied on in opposing applications for injunctions against strikes. The facts in the case were these: Beatty in the summer of 1901 had painting and decorating contracts on a building at 987 Fifth avenue and on the Church of the New Jerusalem in East Thirty-Afth street. He was employing union men and paying union wages. He had no trouble with the union wages. He had no trouble with the union until Healey secured an order for some money from one of the workmen employed by Beatty. This man was discharged by Beatty before the order was presented. Beatty refused to honor the order or to recognize Healey, and the latter notified the union that he had been "insulted" by Beatty. Then the war was on, and within a few weeks the union had compelled the contractors for the two buildings to break their contracts with Beatty. Beatty obtained a temporary injunction from the Supreme Court, which was vacated by that court, but restored by the Appellate Division. On the hearing of the application to make the injunction permanent Justice O'Gorman decided against the plaintiff on the strength of the Cumming case, which upheld the right of a union to refuse to permit its members to work with members of a rival body. Justice McLaughlin wrote the opinion handed down yesterday. In part he says:

McLaughiin wrote the opinion nanded down yesterday. In part he says:

The sole question is whether the defendants, because the plaintiff would not in a formal way recognize the association, or for an alieged affront to its walking delegate, have the right to maliciously cause parties who have entered into contracts with him to deliberately break them by means of threats to cause, or by actually causing, a strike of all the workmen in the employ of such parties. That they have no such right was clearly and unmistakably announced on the appeal from the order vacating the preliminary injunction, the court then saying that the case furnished "no authority for a resort to fraud, intimidation, force or threats."

This, the breaking of the contracts was done, and in the future is threatened to be done, and in the future is threatened to be mploy union labor, or to pay union wages, but simply because—according to the union radicted tratimony of the defendant Callanan—the plaintiff refused to recognize the representative of the union or "the union in any way."

representative of the union or "the union in any way."

The methods here employed to compel the plaintiff to accede to the demands of the defendants are unjust, unreasonable, and such as the law does not recognize and will not tolerate. As well might the defendants resort to physical force to enforce alleged rights or redress real or imaginary wrongs, it clearly appears that they were actuated by improper motives and by a malicious desire to injure the plaintiff. And this being so, the plaintiff was entitled to relief, within all the authorities to which our attention has been called.

The judgment appealed from must be re-seriously by a blow on the head. G.J. Rennedy of Detroit, who shot Sullivan, is now under arrest.

The trouble was caused over a strike at the bridge works in Walkerville, the Canadian town opposite Detroit. Several men refused to go on strike and it has been necessary to give them police protection. Nearly all reside in Detroit and last evening when they quit work they were escorted to the ferryboat by the police. The strikers and their sympathizers crossed the river with the non-union men and when they reached the American side of the river they were joined by a large body of union men from the Buhl Malleable Iron Works.

The non-union men were only twelve in number and a fight was soon in progress. Kennedy, who is shipping clerk at the bridge works, undertook to protect the non-union men and when he could not do so with his fists he drew a revolver and ordered the strikers and their friends to stand aside. They closed in on him before he could use his weapon and knocked him down. Then he was kicked and beaten by the mob. Struggling to his feet he struck right and left with his revolver and when he could no longer protect himself he reversed the weapon and fired two shots.

One of the bullets hit Sullivan's neck, almost severing the jugular vein. A police officer arrived on the scene and Kennedy was rescued.

On his way

Winston was a non-union man employed in the Crassy Island colliery. On his way to work he was set upon by a mob and beaten to death with clubs. These men had evidently laid in wait for him. Altogether it was the most atrocious murder committed during the coal strike. The three men placed on trial at first fied, but were afterward arrested in Hoboken.

At the trial here the State failed to prove that Michael Pristosh and Metro Hurey were identified with the killing. Harry Simroth was identified by the witnesses, however, and offered to plead guilty to murder in the second degree. This plea was accepted by Judge Lynch of Wilkesbarre, specially presiding, and the sentence of eight years was imposed.

The maximum punishment for murder in the second degree in Pennsylvania is twenty years in the penitentiary.

-Ballston Strike Declared Off. SARATOGA, April 9.- The strike of the five hundred employees of the American Hide and Leather Company at Ballston was officially declared off this afternoon and the men will resume work to-morrow and the men will resume work to-morrow morning.

In this village to-day over two hundred painters, paperhangers and decorators returned to work after being idle since April 1. A satisfactory agreement between the men and their employers covers the next eighteen months, ending October, 1904. It was reached through arbitration, former Village President Robert F. Milligan being the arbiter. Arbitration will also settle the strike of the masons and bricklayers before Saturday night. The carpenters and joiners having made a demand for more pay and less hours to take effect April 15, it is thought arbitration will also adjust their differences before that time.

the men return to work. This morning the drivers went to the stable and found the mules all ready, except that no bridles had been put on them. The men demanded that bridles be put on. The stable bosses informed the men tha the bridle was not a part of the harness and they would have to put them on themselves. The men at once struck, and nov 1,200 men are awaiting the settlement of the

at a Pittsburg Railroad Station. PITTSBURG, Pa., April 9 .- Striking structural ironworkers burst into a passenger coach containing non-union men this morning and drove the strangers into a panic. The new arrivals feared they were to be assaulted, for they had trouble the night before when loaded on the car in Baltimore. When the door was broken here detectives on the train drove the strikers off, kicking one of them off the platform so hard that he had to be taken home.

The strikers are indignant at the brutality of the detectives. The non-union men were unloaded and put to work by the American Bridge Company.

SCRUBWOMEN'S UNION WINS.

CHICAGO, April 9 .- The Scrubwomen' Union has won its first victory, and the cause of organized labor has been advanced Although accustomed to spend a large portion of their time on their knees, the wielder of the mop did not assume a kneeling attitude in approaching the building managers. They went to them boldly and threatened through sympathetic strikes to tie up every building in the business centre unless they got recognition and better wages.

To-day both demands were granted.

HANNA TALKS ON UNION LABOR. The Organizations Should Be American-

ized, He Says. ERIE, Pa., April 9 .- At the annual banquet of the Erie Chamber of Commerce to-night Senator Hanna delivered an address on

"Capital Against Labor."

Senator Hanna said that since he learned a lesson in the Stark County coal strike years ago, he never forgot the importance of the labor question. He had found that there was a better way to settle differences between capital and the unions than to fight it out. He said the time had now come for settlement and to reorganize the rights and interests of both. The duty of the employer, he said, is to make the first advance, because he has higher intelligence, wider experience and is higher intelligence, wider experience and is more capable of discussing economic questions. The employer has failed in a measure to fully appreciate and understand the situation.

Senator Hanna outlined the work of the Civic Federation. "The federation," he said, "brings employers and employees face to face with the spirit of determination to find some manner to change old conditions for the better. It is not arbitration so much as conciliation."

must be treated from the standpoint of humanity.

"The call is for simple justice and must be treated from the standpoint of man and not the employees.

"The selfish employer would let the men work for $1 a day as long as the men would do so. Philanthropy and charity are not wanted. The working men of America should have more than the bare necessities of life, such as the happy conditions of home life. The employers should not forget that the workingmen are fellow citizens and are entitled to all that they can earn honestly and fairly."

VIOLENCE BY COAL MINERS. Coal and Iron Police Have to Quell Union Men's Rieting.

MAHANOT CITT, Pa., April 9.—At the Maple Hill colliery of the Reading Company to-day serious clashes were narrowly averted between the striking loaders, runners and door boys. Early this morning the strikers threw out their pickets and tried to prevent the rest of the colliery employees from going to work. Attempts were made to intimidate several Attempts were made to intimidate several men.

Finally the Coal and Iron policemen charged the strikers and forced them off of the company's grounds. The striking men say that they will mete out punishment to those who fill their places and as a consequence the colliery is crippled and is being worked with great difficulty.

At the Primrose colliery on the outside of this place twenty-five men were discharged to-day for insubordination. It is said that unless they are reinstated the union men will go on strike to-morrow. In all parts of this district there are manifestations of un rest among the union miners.

Murder Trial Dies in His Office.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., April 9.—John L. Hunter, State attorney for this county, bled to death while alone in his office tonight. Death was caused by the bursting of a blood vessel in a lung. The hemorrhage came upon him while he sat at his deak. He tried to summon aid and got as far as the door leafling into the hall.

Mr. Hunter had been suffering from a violent cough ever since the ending of the murder trial of Mary Lillian Manson, who was charged with poisoning Mrs. Julia A. Wilson, and which was concluded on March 26. His work as chief prosecutor in this case weakened him greatly and hastened his death. He was born in Gardiner, Ill., 69 years ago and was a graduate of Bowdoin College. He came here about 30 years ago. He was prominent in Democratic politics and well known throughout the State. He leaves a brother, Colonel Edward Hunter, Deputy Judge Advocate of the United States Army, stationed at Governors Island; a daughter in Florida and three sisters in Maine.

WON'T ARBITRATE THE STRIKE

BROTHERHOOD OF CARPENTERS REJECTS A PEACE OFFER.

Contractors Made It and Said That the Union Which Refused Would Be Turned Down—Plain Talking at a Joint Con-ference Falls to End Building Tic-up.

The building contractors affected by the present strike of the Brotherhood of Carpenters against the Amalgamated Car-Society, took measures yesterday to have the differences between the two unions settled by arbitration. Last night a general meeting of the Brotherhood turned down the arbitration proposal. A committee of six contractors was in conference for three hours yesterday afternoon at the Building Trades Club in Broadway with the xecutive committees of the two unions who were summoned to talk the situation over, and it was understood that the contractors served notice on the two unions that they must arbitrate their differences immediately or there would be future trouble for the organization which refused. Otto M. Eidlitz presided at the meeting.

At its close Contractor William Moller, on behalf of the rest, made this statement: "We brought the executive committees of the two unions together in order to get them to arbitrate their differences. put the alternative very plainly before them and both committees agreed to submit and both committees agreed to submit their differences to arbitration, subject to the approval of their respective unions, which will meet to-night to consider the proposition. Their decision will be sent to President Eidlitz of the Mason Builders' Association to-morrow, and he will at once call a meeting of the contractors to take action."

The executive committee of the New York Civic Federation had a representative at the conference.

The Brotherhood of Carpenters met last night at 240 East Eightieth street and turned down the arbitration proposal as put by the executive committee. An officer of the union said later:

"We would be willing to arbitrate if we thought all questions in dispute were to be arbitrated, but unless the Amalgamated Society consents to that there can be no william Fyfe, business agent of the Amalgamated Society, said that the members of his union could no t be brought together in time for a meeting, but that a meeting will be held to-night. He would not undertake to give a guess as to the result.

The executive committee of the Amalgamated Carpenters did some hustling yesterday to be pits promise to fill the places of the striking Brotherhood men. By noon very few men were secured, but late in the afternoon about one hundred and fifty of the Amalgamated society were scattered through the buildings. Brotherhood carpenters were still at work on the Orient building at Pearl and Wall streets; the Kuhn, Loeb & Co. building at Pine and William streets, and the Wyllys building at Platt and William streets. They said the walking delegates had overlooked them.

The admission was made yesterday by Thomas McCracken, the principal agent of the union, that the number of carpenters on strike had been overestimated. About three thousand in all, he said, were out. Some of the men made even a lower estimate.

Samuel Compers, president of the Americans.

Ashtabula. Ohio, April 9.—As the steamer Palmer of the Steel Trust's fleet left this port to-night stones and chunks of ore were hurled at her from the docks, and it is said that all the windows on her port side were broken.

The firemen on the Great Lakes are out on a strike for higher wages, and the greater part of the Lake commerce is at a standstill on this account. The Palmer has been ready to leave port for several days, but non-union firemen were scarce. When she left to-night it was taken for granted that there were non-union firemen on board.

CHICAGO, April 9.—When marine circles received the news to-day that the Marine Firemen, Oilers and Water Tenders' Association had modified their demands, and were ready to make contracts with individual owners, there was a rush made by boat owners and agents to the union's headquarters to sign the scale demanded by the men.

At nightfall it was reported that eight

At nightfall it was reported that eight or ten owners had signed the agreements. It was announced at union headquarters to-day that the demands made by the men call for $52.50 a month up to Oct. 1 and $60 a month thereafter, until the close of navi-gation, including board while at work and putting the boat in ordinary for the winter.

Tenants in a part of the Antoinettes, a new apartment house on Fifty-ninth street near Park avenue, were routed out about midnight last night by a fire in some rubbish in the cellar of the Fifty-ninth street wing. ### TAMMANY HUNTS POR A MAYOR. Not So Much Talk, Now, of George B. McClellan.

There is something or nothing doing in Tammany Hall concerning a candidate for Mayor next fall. This is an Irishism which ought to suit anybody. Leade Charles F.Murphy has all along wanted to nominate Representative George B. McClellan, but sticks, stones and gravel have been thrown at this programme.

Some of Mr. Murphy's friends have de sired to nominate former Mayor Hugh J. Grant, but Mr. Grant has made it known that under no circumstances would he accept a renomination for Mayor. And yet eminent Democrats stiff like to point toward Mr. Grant as a substantial candidate toward Mr. Grant as a substantial candidate for Leader Murphy's consideration.

With all the personal popularity of Representative McClellan it sooks very much as if he were out of the talk as the Democratic candidate for Mayor next fall. The Hon. Hugh McLaughlin is to have his say in the Democratic city convention, and so are James Shevlin and Senator Patrick Henry McCarren; and while all are personally friendly to Mr. Murphy there does not seem to be that unanimity of sentiment now in favor of Mr. McClellan which the Democratic situation in New York city politics seems to demand.

The old talk that Edward M. Shepard is to come up again as a candidate is heard in the land. Just how much cellar-thought there is to the Shepard talk may come out in a meeting of the Jackson Club on Wednesday evening. The Jackson Club is to meet at 133 East Fifty-ninth street, which is in the Twenty-ninth Assembly district. Mr. Shepard is to be there, and so is the newly elected Congressman Francis Burton Harrison, who won over James W. Perry last fall, a formidable Republican in a stout Republican district.

Formed on the 8th day of January, 1903, it adopted the name of the "Jackson Club, in honor of that great leader and exponent of true Democracy—Andrew Jackson. Acting with the General Committee in complete harmony and accord with the central organization of Tammany Hall, the Jackson Club will exert all its energies and use its best efforts to further the success of Tammany Hall, not only in the Twenty-ninth Assembly district, but throughout the city as well.

C. Oliver Iselin arrived here to-day after an absence of three days in Newport. As soon as the tender Sunbeam touched the Herreshoff wharf he entered the South shops, where he once more took a view of the boat. The boat presented a more finished appearance than she did when Mr. Iselin was in Bristol last. So this point was a source of pleasure to the manager. ### POOL. Messrs. Tilt and Carroll Meet at the Strollers for Colby Cup.

B. B. Tilt of the Strollers and Bradish J. Carroll of the Union Club met last night in the Strollers' clubhouse in the game to decide which should be the holder of the Colby cup for the ensuing year. The Colby cup is emblematic of the local pool championship among club members, and was won by Mr. Carroll a year ago. The match last night drew a 'gallery,' which took up all the available space for spectators.

The first frame was close. Tilt capturing the odd ball. Then the Strollers' representative took a big lead by sweeping the table in whirlwind fashion. "Combinations, long drives and puzzling angles were all put through with dash, precision and good position play. Carroll did the better work in the next frame, at the finish of which the score was 27 to 16 in Tilt's favor. The fourth frame was marked by caution in disturbing the pyramid and consequent safety shots. Finally Carroll got an opening and picked off four globes at long range. He won the frame, 2 to 5.

In the sixth frame Carroll drew up to within three points of his opponent, but in the next cluster Tilt sprinted again and set the entire collection spinning to the leather pouches. The fifteen were made in one inning. The score was 50 to 41 in Tilt's favor. The eighth and ninth frames were poorly played and full of scattering counts.

The score at the end of the eleventh frame was: Tilt, 81; Carroll, 78; and little prospect of the game finishing before midnight.

board had been in executive session for some time. Those who voted against cutting the streets through were Aldermen Florence, Klett and Goodman; those who voted in favor of the petition were President Cantor, of the board, and Alderman Myers.

When the hearing began David Welsh, counsel for the petitioners to have the streets cut through the grounds, read a brief in which he pointed out the alleged evils which would come to the neighborhood if there were ball games there. He told of rowdies, cheap saloons and the depreciation of property at the old Polo Grounds, and said like results would come to Washington Heights. He also declared that only five of the 120 signers of the petition in favor of the new ball park lived in the immediate neighborhood. President Gordon and Contractor McAvoy of the local American League club were present at the hearing. Alderman Florence moved that there be an executive session of the board. The motion was carried with the result told of.

Will Not Back Terry for $10,000 Against Corbett Just Yet.

Sam Harris says he has been misquoted and that he never declared that he was willing to bet $10,000 on the outside that Terry McGovren can beat Young Corbett if a battle should be arranged at once. What Harris avers he did say is that he would be ready to wager this sum as soon as McGovern had two battles with prominent lads in his class and defeated them. Harris is now trying to bring about matches between Terry and Eddle Hanlon and Benny Yanger. These two are considered to be Corbett's nearest rivals. Harris believes that if McGovern should be successful over the pair the public would insist that the champion give the little Brooklynite another chance. At the present time McGovern has no match on. There are several good feather weights, though, who are ready to put on the gloves with him, but McGovern is only after the topnotchers. Sam Harris says he has been misquoted

M'GRAW'S NATIONAL LEAGUERS BEAT FORDHAM TEAM.

Wild Pitching by the Collegians of Assistance to the Professionals-Not Much Hitting, but Sharp Fielding-Rough Tactics Seen-Results of Other Games.

At the expense of the Fordham College their first chance yesterday to go through their paces before a crowd of home specta-tors. Considering the hard rain of the day tors. Considering the hard rain of the day before the Polo Frounds were in excellent condition for playing—that is, the infield. The outfield was soggy and heavy. There was a crowd of over twelve hundred on hand, was a crowd of over twelve hundred on hand, among which were a number of Fordham students who made all the noise that was forthcoming. The New Yorks won the game easily enough; the score was 8 to 2. However, poor battery work had as much to do with Fordham's defeat as anything the professionals did. When the Fordham pitchers were not hitting batsmen, they were sending them along on balls. Doubtless they would have been hit harder had they sent the ball nearer to the plate; but as it was, each side made seven hits. The hitting was not sensa-nearer to the plate; but as it was, each side made seven hits. The hitting was not sensational, nor particularly promising.

The New Yorks gave promise of one thing, nevertheless, that they will be more alive on the bases than formerly. They were spry in that department yesterday, but not always to good advantage. Bad base-running by Mathewson cost them a run, and their energy in moving along exceeded their judgment. Between them the three New York pitchers struck out thirteen men, each being in the box three innings. Mathewson showed up best and Cronin next. Mathewson used more speed than Cronin or McGinnity. All three had good control. Fordham's scoring was done off McGinnity. O'Brien made one of his three single by Robertson and a timely single by Curtin, which sent in the runs.

The New Yorks fielded steadily and sharply. Oliver in right field for Fordham caught flies in brilliant style and Mitchell made a hair-raising catch in left. What fielding chances that fell to tilbert and Babb, McGiraw's new infielders, were properly attended to first so had only one good deal of ground. In three out of his four times at bat he walked to first so had only one good chance to hit the ball, on which occasion he raised an easy fly.

Gilbert is lively enough, but went to far the ball, on which occasion he raised an easy fly.

Gilbert is lively enough, but went too far with his "ginger" a couple of times. He displayed rough tactics which he cannot cast aside any too soon. Once he tried to knock the ball out of a Fordham man's hand at the plate, and later he shoved a Fordham man violently while scoring. These maneuvres did not meet with the approval of the spectators, who want clean baseball. In the ninth inning Hartman of Fordham slapped the ball on McGann with more force than there was any occasion for.
